East Central Celebrates Sixty Years of Learning

Sixty years of contributions on the part of administrators, faculty and students of East Central High School cannot be tabulated by the use of mere numbers. Their contributions to Tulsa's eastside, the city and state are so far reaching in a continually positive spectrum of learning, leadership and community spirit, that to attempt to view those contributions separately from all others is impossible.

Entertwined like a time worn ivy stalk and an old stone wall dating back to the days when Garnett, Oklahoma peacefully rested here before statehood, East Central's traditions of excellence in developing its youth permeates the fabric of the community.

Our school holds the compound distinguishment of being one of the oldest and yet most modern and progressive in the metropolitan Tulsa area. East Central's history has reflected the changing times and lifestyles of the past six decades. Steeped in tradition, our school is still adopting new ones to fit new occasions, as its student body and faculty strive for an identity which is essentially "East Central."

Its history combines unique influences: the country-rural origin, the transition into the Tulsa system, a one-time status as the most modern of Tulsa's high schools and now a cornerstone which has and will supply more, well-educated citizens to the area.

a rural setting at what is now Admiral Place and Garnett, the first East Central building was completed in 1927, riding the crest of an uneasy current into the depression days ahead. The land that it sits on was sold to the school board for $1 by Garnett farmer, L.O. Cremin, with the stipulation that the land was to always be used for a school or he or his heirs would reclaim their ownership.

Mr. A.F. Hyden, newly designated superintendent and first principal, and his community supporters had organized the school against the advice of the state superintendent of schools, because local high school students were having to commute as far as Central High School, then in downtown Tulsa, to complete their secondary education.

Our school's first name was indeed Central High School, but school board member Mr. Claude White along with Mr. Lloyd Grove and Mrs. Edna Horn suggested that they change the name to East Central, to avoid mix-ups in the future with the Central High School downtown. Up over the front doors, bricks were knocked out above the name Central and a limestone block with the word East was inserted.

With a teaching staff of three and approximately 65 students, the first building contained 12 classrooms and one small auditorium, part of "School continued on p. 5

District #12," on a nine acre tract. At different times, this building housed both elementary and junior high school students, as well as high school. The building remains, an old brick structure on the Green Country Christian Academy property.

Mr. Hyden was instrumental in choosing our school name and colors. An assembly of the student body was called in 1927. At that time the St. Louis Cardinal baseball team was very successful, and several Oklahomans were members of the team. The St. Louis fans copied their idols and chose as their name and mascot the Cardinal, using the bird's proud colors of red and white. It was not until the late 1960's that the mascot would change its image into the current "Fighting Cardinal," which most students now associate as the school emblem.

A victorious 11-man football team was formed in 1930, with Mr. Hyden as the coach. For four years, the East Central Cardinals were ranked in the top few of their district. Then in 1934 the athletic department dropped 11-man football for two years, until 1937, when six-man football was resumed. (See more details of this early team in the Sports section of the book.)

One of the prominent contributors to the early years of East Central was Mr. William L. Wickett, who was appointed as superintendent in 1948 when the school was comprised of 267 students and nine faculty members. He served for 14 years until 1962, at which time East Central was incorporated into the Tulsa Public School system after a lengthy legal battle that went to the State Supreme Court. On January 15, 1951, East Central's first band was established with Mr. McPheters as its director. (See more details on the first band in the Performing Arts section of the book.)

Mr. James W. Payne, principal of East Central High School, began his career in this capacity during the fall session of 1955, at which time a second building was opened to house the senior high school students. Junior high school students remained in the original building.

In July of 1960 a tornado tore into the little red brick school, destroying most of its auditorium, knocking over walls, like a block house is destroyed by a child. The hot summer of 1960 was broken by the clouds and harsh winds. The tornado's damage to the school was extensive. But to the optimist, it was a chance for a new beginning.

Optimism in the Face of Difficulty

Students started the fall term to the accompaniment of saws, hammers and drills as workmen painstakingly rebuilt the school. On September 6, when school opened, students had to dodge the workmen's scaffolds, as improvements continued to be made. The 240 sophomores, juniors and seniors attended classes in the cafeteria and junior high building, until the damaged parts were repaired and ready for use.

The second milestone of East Central's history was the transitional period into the Tulsa Public Schools, Independent School District #1. The year was 1962, as the city's growth pattern began sweeping to the east.

Major obstacles were encountered, for the community members had been proud of the school's traditions and independence, and feared losing the individualism which had marked the school's earlier days. Although there was some concern along this line that the name East Central was too repetitive of Central High School, and the red and white colors were the same as the school, then downtown, the patrons were unwilling to change either the school name or colors. They were ultimately assured that these traditions would remain.

The campus at the time had two brick buildings, an outside cafeteria, continued on p. 9 which at one time had also housed elementary students, and five prefabricated buildings. In inclement weather, students had to don slickers and carry umbrellas to walk across the campus for lunch. Supplies and textbooks were financially low. There were no literature books for the 12th grade; consequently, a set of discarded books was borrowed from Hale. To meet the lack of choir robes for choral presentations and yearbook pictures, Will Rogers High School supplied a discarded set of blue and gold robes. The struggle was on to build East Central into a modern, fully equipped school.

The plans for a new East Central High School began in July of 1963. William Henry Ryan and his assistant, William Haney, did some pioneering in designing and building the school. "We wanted it to look different, not just like other high schools in Tulsa. We designed it so that the students would have pride in it, and I think we achieved our goal," said Mr. Ryan. The Board of Education awarded a $2.8 million contract to the Wickersham Construction Co. in June of 1964. Construction on the unique building began.

The next phase of East Central's progression began in the fall of 1964, as the senior and junior highs were divided. A split schedule was inaugurated to accommodate the expanding enrollment. The senior high had increased to 681 students, with a combined senior and junior high faculty of 45 members. On the extended day plan schedule, the high school was in session from 7 a.m. until noon, at which time the campus was evacuated to allow the junior high shift to move in from 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Classes were held on 45 minute periods with a ten minute "milk break." There was no time or place for the varsity athletic teams to practice; the yearbook had difficulty scheduling pictures; there were no class plays, assemblies, or rehearsals of any type. The optimum learning peak could be achieved only with more homework assignments than the students had encountered before.

These handicaps were alleviated on January 24, 1966 when East Central's new school doors were opened to its 650 students. The junior high remained at the old location, which was later renamed Lewis and Clark Junior High School. Principal James Payne, gave classes an unexpected concert when he sent music over the new intercom system instead of opening it for voice transmission.

During the 1970's, the ultra-modern building attracted some unusual and ultra-modern approaches. A pilot program called modular scheduling was tried for two years. Herein, students would follow a six-day rotational schedule during a five-day week, meeting in large auditorium groups at times and in small groups at other times. The students even had free mods, 20 minute periods, where they could choose the class they needed to attend to. Other new programs have been offered in the 1980's, such as the current gifted and talented classes.

East Central's enrollment has rocketed from the 681 students of 1965 to the present 1,762 students and 84 faculty members. There have been some fluctuations up and down in these figures for the past 10 years. This rapid growth necessitated the addition of a new wing, which was opened in late spring of 1970. The school's total cost of construction came to $3,640,470.00 and it contains 264,818 square feet of floor space with 79 classrooms on a 40 acre campus.

In August of 1979, Mr. James Payne, original building principal and principal of East Central High School for 24 years, was deceased. Some long time faculty members felt his very philosophy permeated the walls of the building and lived long after he was gone. Mr. Larry Smith, then assistant principal, became the "acting principal" for one year.

Coming from Memorial High School, Dr. James Darland has served as principal of our school since the fall of 1980. The school has continued to flourish and grow in quality under his careful guidance and leadership. The yearbook staff of 1987 wishes that all of you 1987 Cardinals have also grown and flourished in this sixtieth year of East Central High School. May these halls ring joyfully for at least another sixty years with the voices of the future.

For at least the last twenty years of East Central's 60 years of existence, Royal Cardinals have been singled out by their peers and honored for their outstanding qualities, performance and contributions. Whether chosen on the basis of popularity or achievement the students featured in this section of the yearbook have taken their places in a long "hall of fame" extending back to 1927. Now let's view the cream of the Cardinal crop.

Seniors "Commence" Upon Their Futures

The class of '87 set their plans for the future, realizing the future was just a step away. The seniors started their fundraisers for the senior prom by selling megaphones and Tom's candy and also by holding a garage sale. Graduation became a reality when ceremonies took place on Tuesday, June 2 at the Tulsa Mabee Center. Vesper services took place on Sunday, May 31, at 4 p.m. Looking back on the year, the seniors took pride in their school, their classmates and their class officers. Senior class officers were Kerry Barnett, pres., Paula Webb, vice pres., Michele Bolen, sec. and Andrew Portteus, treasurer. As the seniors approached the end of the year, an unavoidable milestone lay in their paths...they had to make some difficult decisions about what to do in the coming years. Their senior year for most was one of joy and achievement, experiences and close friendships, some which may last for a lifetime. One encouraging thought which the seniors could take with them as they left these hallowed halls was the fact that they were carrying on a long tradition of positive contributions on the part of the numerous other graduates of East Central High School throughout its colorful and meaningful sixty year history.

The class of 1988 had many things to do this year in preparation for their "rise to the top." From the arrival of class rings, doing the dreaded research paper and taking the ACT for the first time, the juniors never lost their spirit. One of their big excitements was being able to drive to school. With Kathy Taylor as junior class president, money was raised in many different ways for an exciting senior prom.

The junior class had an exciting year even though most of it was spent competing with the senior class in numerous ways. The juniors started off by trampling the seniors and underclassmen in the Salvation Army's canned food drive, donating 2502 cans of the total school contribution of 6780 cans. Mrs. Suzanne Pharr's homeroom in C407, under the leadership of Junior Class President Kathy Taylor, donated 1210 cans. On the same day as the canned food drive ended, the juniors again creamed the seniors in the hall decorating contest which featured Christmas greetings. Kathy Taylor more than enjoyed the opportunity to throw pies in the faces of the other class presidents after the juniors were victorious.

The class of 1990 made an outstanding addition to East Central High School. They showed their freshman spirit by forming a cheerleading squad made up of freshman pep club members to help cheer for their basketball teams. The freshmen also brought with them a new style and attitude to E.C. which separated them from the rest of the classes. They showed their individuality and spirit and proved to be definite Cardinal material.

Jimmy Henry said, "Who me?" (upper left) Shelby Knutson smiled extra big because she doesn't have the ninth grade syndrome of braces like Jenny Christensen and Kim Borsley. (upper right) Becky Keller, Scott Klewer and Jimmy Gouch modeled the freshman fade. (left) A stiff upper lip and a hard swing brought Jennifer Aud through her final games. (above)

Throughout the year, Cardinals of all persuasions united to form numerous clubs and organizations. In these various groups, they took the opportunity to share their ideals and goals. French Club breakfasts, FCA box suppers and Pep Club sweatshirt and spirit ribbon sales kept up the involved Cardinal traditions. The extracurricular activities would not have been possible without the dedication and support of the club sponsors.

Let's salute our student council and its officers for doing such a fine job this year in organizing meaningful and truly enjoyable activities like the Christmas and Homecoming dances as well as Spirit Week. Elections for many offices and honors were handled smoothly and efficiently. East Central's active student council officers and representatives met regularly during homeroom time to discuss and act upon important issues this year.

The varsity squad started off the season by attending camp at Central State University. They won the superior trophy and brought home five spirit sticks. During October the varsity cheerleaders competed at the Tulsa State Fair. Overall they had a fulfilling year. The junior varsity squad shared the enthusiasm. The girls attended camp at Oklahoma University where they learned many cheers. They were always there to support their players. Both squads showed the true meanings of Cardinal spirit.

The Pep Club showed a great deal of excitement and enthusiasm this year. The members gave the athletes interesting and delicious gifts on a weekly basis to show their care and support. The club held hall and door decorating contests, pep assemblies and a chain-link contest. A new and attractive item was included in this year's club activities: a club sweatshirt that aptly stated: "Birds of a feather, flock together."

The Christian athletes of East Central organized activities that expressed good clean fun. They started off the year with an appetizing box supper which raised $40.00 for their organizational expenses. This was followed by a memorable hayride which coraled 239 students. Other FCA activities included a Christmas party, scavenger hunt, ice skating and guest speakers at meetings in individual member's homes.

Advanced French Club does it better

Le Cercle Français Avancé a bien commencé l'année. En octobre, les élèves du cercle ont goûté un peu de France en préparant un petit déjeuner de croissants et de chocolat chaud. Nos chemises de sport sont arrivées au mois de décembre. Au dîner de Noël, nous avons mangé la quiche, la salade et une mousse au chocolat à la maison de Shannon Spittler. Après le dîner, nous avons chanté. Les 104 membres ont fait aussi les projets pour le printemps.

Les élèves qui étudient le français pour la première année ont besoin d'être organisés et intelligents. Avant Noël, les membres du cercle français I sont allés au restaurant Grape Vine. Nous avons chanté les chansons de Noël dans le centre commercial Stone Horse. Les chemises de sweat ont dit: "On parle français à East Central; c'est superchouette!" Les chemises en rouges et blanches ressemblent aux chemises de Coca.

Mark Ziesmer was one of the loyal members of the German club this year.

This year the German club had 53 members and Mr. Ken Schulte was its mellow leader. The members enjoyed a festive Christmas party as well as a couple of interesting social gatherings in the spring of the year. During Valentines Day, they held a "love at first byte" computer match up. Keith Owen designed this year's "Deutsch macht spass" sweatshirt. The president of the club was Ronda Peters, working with officers: Andrew Portteus, v.p.; and Chuck Macaw, sec.-treas.

Students against drugs united to form two new organizations: SADA and IMPACT. Together they worked to inform students about the dangers of drugs. Because of their efforts, many students opened their eyes and learned to say "no" to drugs. The Red Cross conducted The Great American Smokeout. At Christmas, they filled nearly 200 stockings for the needy. They sponsored the Bloodmobile on April 1st and E.C. students again showed their giving spirit!

Weird Ward taught FHC new concepts

"Gads" Mr. Pat Ward acted crazy as usual. (above) Brian Whisenbunt decided to be brave and participate in Mr. Ward's experiment. (right)

Rather than being just another bland organization, the FHC is essentially a Secret Brotherhood. The "Fellows" gather at odd times to consider weird chemical concepts. There are no dues, no constitutions, no officers, and no by-laws. The High Priest reigns supreme. The Disciples of Elom (god of chemistry) are sworn to secrecy in matters such as the initiation ritual, password, fight song, etc., therefore very little can be said for publication. Bear witness also that one or more of the chemistry teachers have slipped over the edge in recent years and are not completely responsible. Hail Elom!"

The Cardinal Yearbook staff had several unique challenges to face this year. The sixtieth anniversary of East Central required that the book be special in every way. In addition, all copy (that is every word in the book) was entered into two Apple IIe computers using a special program, Comtran, by Walsworth Publishing Co. Thanks to the ingenious efforts of Craig Hewitt and his assistants, Mrs. Judith Holt, sponsor, and Suzie Spencer, the copy in this book is more accurate and better written than ever before. Using an automatic indexing function in the computer program, yearbook staffers can now make it possible for students to really see every page they appear on.

Varsity Adds to History

The football program here at East Central has come a long way since the early years. Many of the rules have changed and players are now bigger, stronger and faster.

In 1939, World War II began. It had its effects on East Central. Many of its young men felt the need to serve their country and left E.C. during their senior years. Sports played a big part in keeping E.C. united. From 1937 to 1940 we participated in six-man football because of a lack of players.

East Centrals football team was undefeated in those years which classed them as the "Mythical" State Champions.

Freshmen Show

The 1987 freshman football team was coached by Mr. Larry Ballard and Mr. Jack Krieder. The freshmen had the best football record of all the teams. They had the talent at all the positions that E.C. needed this year but can use in the future varsity teams. A few of the talented freshmen suited up for two varsity games and even played in the rival Hale game. The freshmen showed great potential for the immediate years to come.

The junior varsity football team had a great season this year. One possible reason for this might have been the enthusiasm and drive of their "new" football coaches, Tony Speer and Beau Slemaker. This was their first year to coach football anyway. The junior varsity squad proved that they could take over the varsity football team next year by winning four of their six games. Perhaps the youth and enthusiasm on the part of players and coaches will carry over to future successes for these loyal and hard working Cardinals and coaches. The Cardinal yearbook staff wishes to congratulate them for a job well done!

Consider the thought of your girl's softball team only having three returning seniors and a lot of new coming freshmen and sophomores. This thought scared everyone into thinking our girls could not get the job done. They, along with the superb coaching of Mr. Dave Stauffer, beat these odds and managed to win their district, take second in regionals, and qualify to go to the state tourney in Norman. Senior, Robin Waters, was chosen as an all-state player as a utility. As one can see by the girl's softball scoreboard, the team racked up a season of 16 wins and only six losses. This team really "made it."

Shooting Stars

This varsity basketball team did not exist for a long time, but not seen in a few years. They won most of their games and were ranked in the top ten during almost the entire season. They defeated such powerhouses as Mount Vernon, Washington and Edison. The team consisted of nine players and two coaches and was led by starters Darin Plautz, T.W. Drullinger, Todd Gourd, Kenneth Adams and Lee Murphy. Whenever the Cards needed an important win, they were there to help.

J.V. Boys in Action

The junior varsity boys basketball team this year was coached by Mr. Rodger Lefler. The team had its ups and downs but they pulled together to make a great team effort. Through their overall performance and team spirit they showed that skill alone does not always make a winning team. They look forward to a promising varsity team next year.

Frosh Jumped

The purpose of the freshmen basketball team was to develop the skill of the player individually and as a team member, so that they will be able to contribute on the varsity level by the time they are juniors. By the coaching of Rodger Lefler and Ray McGill, the team developed a lot of character although winning was not the highlight of the season. There was a great transition from junior high to high school competitive basketball and all fifteen players made progress each day.

Girls Shot

The varsity girls basketball team was directed by Coach Roy Gage and Coach Harvey McDaniel. Having only five seniors, these girls kept up a fast pace. The varsity girls proved they had great teamwork by stopping anyone who crossed their path. We can only hope the team will be as good next year. Good job, girls!

PERFORMANCE

Continuing 60 years of success in performing arts, these talented Cardinals have had another great year. The Big Red Sound marching band and Pep Band energetically supported the football and pep assembly sports events. The orchestra and choruses performed for parents and classmates alike in a variety of concerts and assemblies. The drama department carried on as the Flag Corps twirled and the Drum Majors led the band in parades and competitions.

traditions of excellence

The Big Red Sound, under the direction of Mr. Gary Hill, had another exceptional year. The band won the first place trophy in this year's "Marcharama" in the 5A division. That was followed by an "excellent" rating at the regional marching contest at T U.

The band participated in the Tulsa Fair Parade. Many people fail to realize the hard work the band puts in to be able to perform. Every morning they met at 6:45 a.m. for rehearsal. It takes an extreme amount of dedication to be a marching band member. Good job, band.

Flag Corps shows their pride with flying colors

The Flag Corps is a very important part of the Big Red Sound. This years Flag Corps was led by Kim McHenry and Jeri Edwards. A great deal of precision is necessary to be a Flag Corps member. Patience and plenty of extra practice are also requirements. All these elements make the corps a colorful part of the show.

With the close of World War II came new beginnings for the United States. East Central also felt the need to start afresh. New clubs and organizations were formed to boost school spirit. The most uplifting organization formed was East Central's first band.

An interesting story accompanied that organization. The P.T.A. felt that the students deserved the privilege of having a band to represent them. Mr. William Wickett, the superintendent at that time, discovered that the funds for that year would not be able to include the salary of a band director. A determined P.T.A. did something out of the ordinary by volunteering to pay the salary of the director for the remainder of the school year (1950-1951). So began the search for a qualified teacher.

One after one the P.T.A. interviewed those seeking such a position. Mr. Frank McPeters, former band director at Lewis and Clark Jr. High School, was against stiff competition. But, he came out on top. One apparent reason was the experience he had acquired while teaching at T.U.

On January 15, 1951, East Central's first band was established with Mr. McPeters as its director.

A tough start was in store for the band since previously no musical instruction at East Central had been given. With the help of their director, students ranging in grades from 4th to 12th, chose the instrument best suited for them.

Usually the P.T.A. will sponsor a club for only one year. But once more the P.T.A. went out of their way to please East Central's students. They earned the money to purchase the uniforms for the band.

Mr. McPeters did a wonderful job in teaching the students. He was responsible for East Central's first marching band. His efforts were well-rewarded, in competition East Central's band was ranked high.

The band proved to be a success, thanks to the efforts of the P.T.A., Mr. McPeters, and the members of that first band. The forming of the band was a major event of the years between 1947-1957.

This years pep band was composed of wind ensemble members. Although they were given only a few chances to perform, they provided the spirit when needed. A very integral part of the pep band is the percussion section. Their rhythm is well liked by most students; The yearbook staff would like to thank them for their support.

Wind Ensemble Keeps Commitment to quality

The Wind Ensemble was composed of students from all four grades. These musicians were selected at the directors discretion to be wind ensemble members. Along with the performances in the winter concert and winter assembly, the wind ensemble prepared for the Rogers invitational contest and the state band contest at Union H.S.

Despite a smaller number of students, this year's string ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Gary Hill, continued to perform well. The 11 member ensemble performed at both instrumental music concerts and the city wide orchestra contest held at East Central. Hopefully this fine group can grow in size in the next few years.

Concert Band gains experience every day

The Concert Band was made up of mostly underclassmen. The main objective of the Concert Band is for its members to gain experience and polish their talents. Patience is a must for the students and their director, Mr. Hill. Being a Concert Band member isn't easy, but these young students have done a wonderful job.

Concert Chorus

produces sweet songs

The Concert Chorus is the heartbeat of East Central's vocal music dept. Made up of seniors, juniors and sophomores, this group thrives on the experience of its members. The chorus visited many malls and other shopping centers to sing to those passing by. The chorus also performed in many concerts and assemblies for the students.

The advanced drama classes were instructed this year by Mrs. Linda Dobie. The Thanksgiving assembly play "The Medicine Man gets Laughs" was a favorite of all students. Learning to drive is a difficult task. But in Driver's Education class, Mr. Jack Kreider and Mr. Ray McGill tried their best to make it as simple as possible for the eager, beginning drivers. They taught the laws, skills, and safety precautions needed to pass the mind-boggling final. Driver's Education gave the students on-the-road experience and many hours of simulator training. By taking this course, the students received a good-student discount on their insurance policies.

English class instruction is structured to help the students to communicate with others. Literature as well as grammar and composition are the vital and important areas of study. In addition to vocabulary skill building, the study of how the English language was formed is also helpful. Thinking skills are emphasized since words and language are simply an extension of thought. Clear thinking is best communicated in clear sentences. Literature study provides students and teachers with an excellent opportunity to discuss and explore different styles and philosophies of thought. Grammar is important, but one must think first before one can write it down!

Jan Armstrong begins And ends a 24 year Teaching career at E.C.

by Judith Holt

Mrs. Armstrong has contributed to the East Central student population's understanding of the English language for over one-third of the school's entire existence. For 24 years, Mrs. Armstrong has taught English and periodically Journalism at East Central, starting in the "old building" in September, 1963.

As if it wasn't a sufficient contribution, Mrs. Armstrong has also taught night school at Central, Hale and E.C. as well as summer school at E.C. for 17 years.

Mrs. Armstrong is a native Tulsan and a product of the Tulsa Public Schools herself, having attended John Burroughs Elementary, Roosevelt Junior High, Central High School and the University of Tulsa, where she graduated in 1949 with a B.A. in English and Journalism and a Master of Arts in Communication in 1970.

Before beginning her teaching career, Mrs. Armstrong worked for El Paso Natural Gas Company in Farmington, New Mexico in the Gas Control Department and as the superintendent's secretary. She also worked for the Dispatching Department in Salt Lake City, Utah. These corporate work experiences took place during the years of 1952 to 1963.

When asked about one of her most memorable teaching experiences, Mrs. Armstrong related this historical moment: "During my first year teaching, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in a Dallas, Texas parade during October. When we got the final death notice, during sixth hour, every girl in the room burst out crying. As a third-month teacher and having no idea how to handle the situation, I just sat down and joined them. I probably would do the same today."

Mrs. Armstrong has a son, daughter-in-law, and three granddaughters who live in Ardmore, Oklahoma. She will spend more time riding Western Trail on her Tennessee Walker, Shannon. Mrs. Armstrong plans to work on a part-time basis, but leave plenty of time to ride, travel and do several things which a teaching schedule prevented: see a Kentucky Derby, get right in the middle of a Mardi Gras parade and attend the Tennessee Walker National horse show in Shelbyville, Tennessee. In addition, she plans to grow more tomatoes and roses.

Mrs. Armstrong will be missed terribly by the present, past and future students of East Central and by her long time companions and faculty members. Her wonderfully positive attitude in the midst of diversity is in itself a gift not shared by many. Her special sparkle, found only in the eyes of the brilliant and real, will leave the hallways of East Central just a little dimmer, excepting only the glow left behind in our memories and hearts of that dear, smiling lady...Mrs. Armstrong. Happy trails, Jan...you deserve to stop and smell the roses along the way!

"Mrs. Armstrong is very dedicated to the education of young people." - Dr. James M. Darland

"Fourth floor will not be the same without Jan. After many years of dedicated teaching, I wish my good friend happy years to come." - Mrs. Suzanne Pharr

"We are on the verge of losing a dedicated and compassionate teacher - Jan Armstrong. She will be sorely missed by students and faculty alike. We wish her all the happiness in the world as she embarks on her new career - retirement." - Mr. George Doran

"We rejoice with Jan as she enters another exciting place of her life. Her experience and friendship will be missed in the halls of E.C. by students and faculty." - JoAnn Burnley

"What a joy for you! What a loss for students at East Central, and what a large empty place you will leave at our morning coffee table. You will be missed. Some days teaching does not seem to pay well, but I feel that a teacher like you affects eternity, one can never tell where his influence stops. Perhaps it never does!" - Mrs. Doshie Chandler

“Outstanding Athlete” Guides others through 2nd half of EC History

by Judith Holt

For one-half of the time that East Central High School has existed, Mr. Eddie Dyer has been guiding and molding promising young athletes from the eastside of Tulsa. Thirty years of Coach Dyer's 36 year career in public school athletics has been at East Central High School, starting in 1957 at the "old building" as football coach.

Coach Dyer graduated from Okemah High School after having lettered in football, basketball, track and baseball. Needless to say he was voted outstanding athlete his senior year. He was drafted two weeks after graduation and spent two years in the Air Force from 1945 to 1947. Eighteen months of his service duty was spent in Narsarsuaq, Greenland as a sergeant in Air Operations. After his Air Force duty was rendered, Coach Dyer enrolled at Northeastern State and received his B.A. and Master Degrees. He participated in athletics at N.S.U., lettering in basketball all four years. His first teaching assignment was at Graham High School where he coached boys basketball and baseball in 1951. In 1952, Coach Dyer moved to Kiefer High School where he coached football, girls and boys basketball and track for the next five years.

Thirty years ago, in 1957, Coach Dyer was hired as football coach at East Central in Tulsa when the school's enrollment was only 456. During his admirable tenure here, he has coached football, girls basketball, track and golf as well as attending well to his duties as Athletic Director.

Coach Dyer's wife, Wanda, whose hobby is cooking, and he, would like to spend more time at their cabin on the lake during their retirement years. They have a daughter, Kim, who graduated from East Central in 1976. Kim teaches English at Oaks High School. Coach Dyer and his wife have two grandchildren: Autumn, 2-years-old, and Chance, 8-months-old.

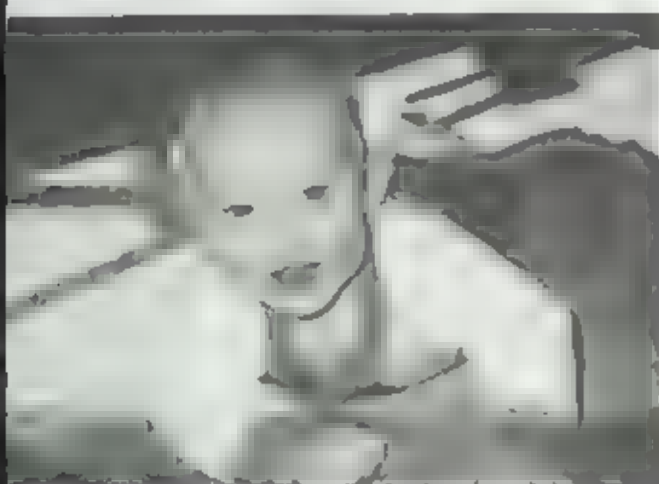

Coach Dyer has enjoyed working these last few years for Dr. Darland, principal, who he considers "a very nice man." Coach Dyer added, "The secret of success for any Athletic Director is his coaching staff.. our coaches are the best in the state and it makes it very difficult to retire."

Recently People Magazine referred to actor James Garner as "the last real man" on its cover. However, the Cardinal yearbook staff knows this "big bird" is really "the last of the real men." Happy retirement Coach, we'll miss your easy ways and steady hand.

"Coach Dyer has worked hard to make East Central one of the best schools in Tulsa." - Dr. James Darland

"Eddie Dyer has always been an educator, coach and an all around guy who covered all the bases, all of the time. We surely will miss him." - Luther Younger

"The first day I walked into East Central, 24 years ago, I found a coffee cup with 'Armstrong' painted on it - compliments of Eddie and his wife. I have never forgotten this gesture of welcome and friendship. Happy fishing, Coach Dyer!" - Jan Armstrong

"Eddie makes me think of the quote that says: When the one Great Scorer comes to write against your name, He marks not that you won or lost...but how you played the game. Eddie, no worry...you played a great game." - Doshie Loyd Chandler

"He's as old as Methuselah, as wise as Solomon, the world's worst fisherman, but the best friend any student or teacher could ever have. Mr. Dyer has made many contributions to E.C. and he will be missed by all." - Pat Holder

Celebrating Cardinal Friendships!

Mrs. Hope,

It sure has been a pleasure being in your class this year I sure have learned alot of literature and hopefully my english skills will strengthen over the years. It was a pleasure to return the favor while teaching you for small that hopefully you won't need. Friends, especially good ones, are few and far between. I feel that our friendship will continue to grow for years to come. While attending it, I will think of the many years of hard work you spent on the campus to earn where you are right now I hope I can become as successful in the medical field, who knows I may teach med school someday. Thanks for the inspiration. I will keep in touch.
please do the same. (438-3249)

In Christ's Love,
Gary L. Majors
SR '88

Mrs. Hope, you've been one of the best English teachers I've had, in fact the second.
Keep up your good teaching. See ya next year, hopefully.
Love,
Sweetie
Daguerre

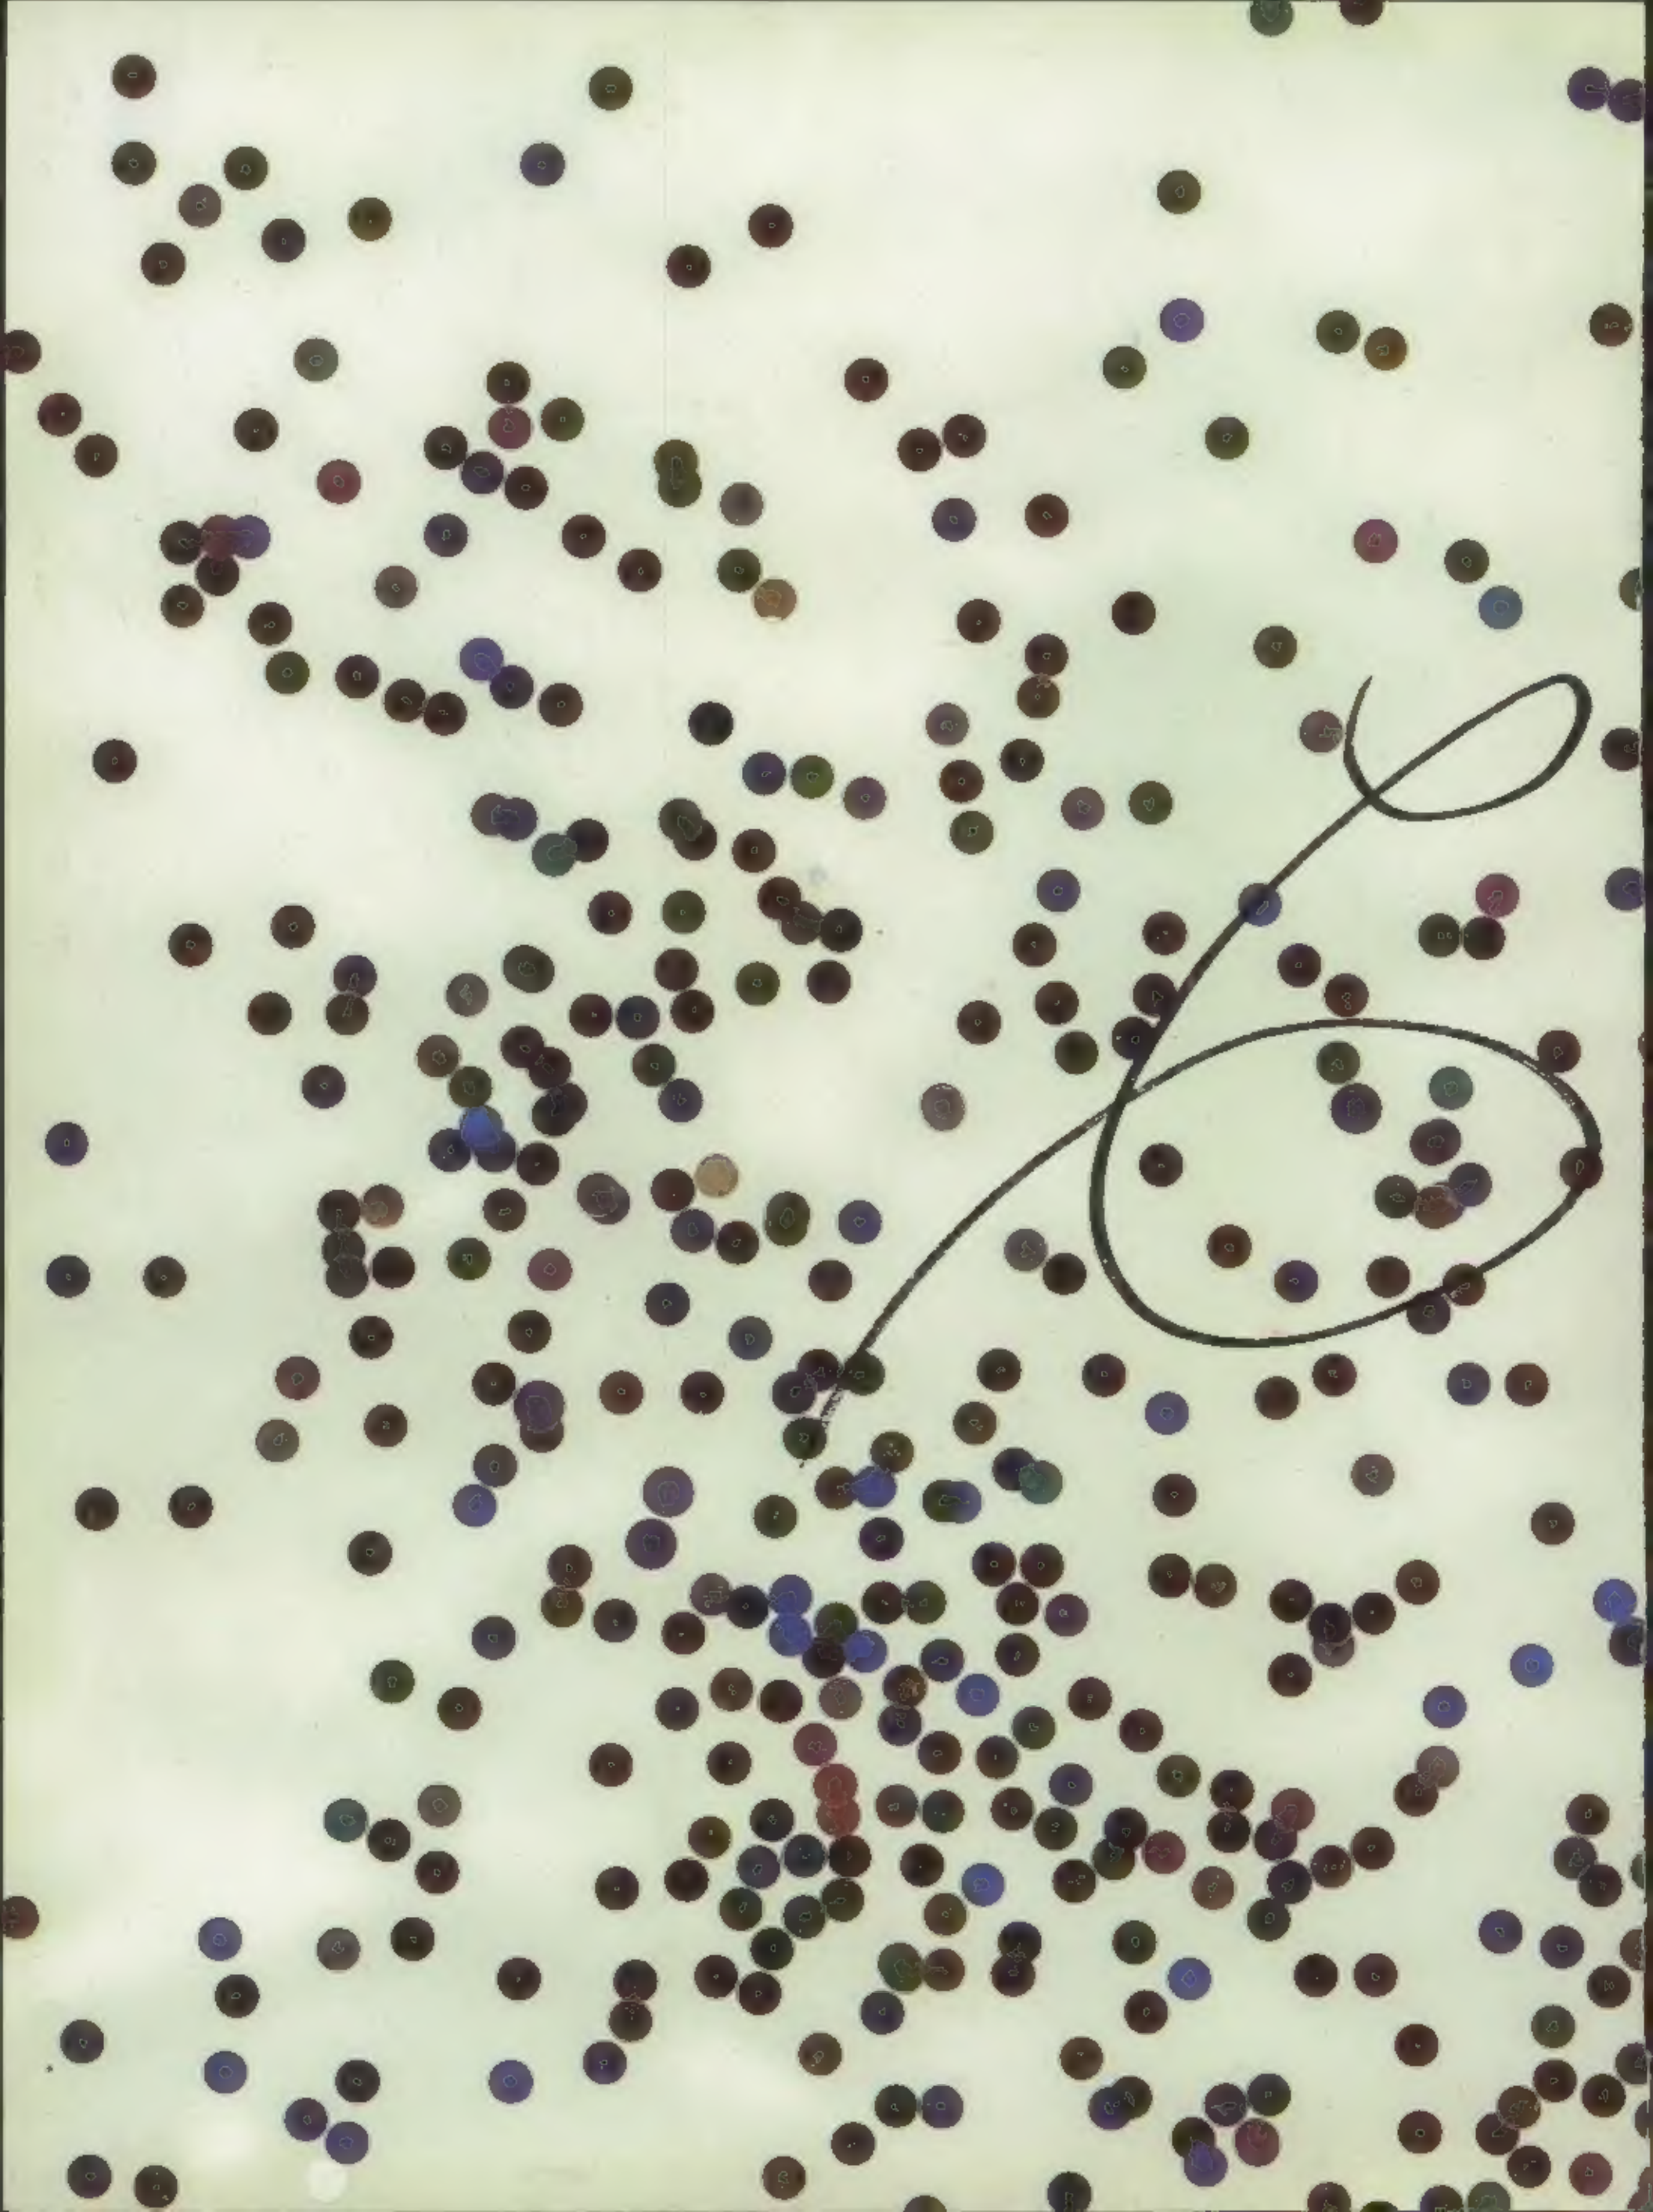

Mrs. Hope,
you are a great teacher. Even though I was a problem.
Thanks for all of your help. Believe it or not you have inspired me to do better.

Love,
Wikki
Lancaster

Mrs Hope,

you are a great teacher, I'm I got to have the honor of being in your class!
Have a great summer!
Love Ya,
Shawn Fisher
